Club Will Have Library, to Which Books Have Already Been Given.

The second session of the Virginia hemists' Club was held last evening The Section Session of the Corporation formulasis' Club was held last evenling in the courtroom of the Corporation Commission, in the Capitol. The meeting was a large one, and ten new members were elected to the club. A considerable number of variable scientific books and sets of current technical literature have already been contributed and loaned to the club by members, and these will form the nucleus of a chemical library, which it is expected will become a very valuable feature of the organization. The principal feature of the evening was the address by the president, by. E. W. Magruder, chief chemist of the State Department of Agriculture, upon

VETERANS MUST GET OVER $100 PER DAY

Only eighty-eight working days remain before the date set for the Confederate Reunion in this city, May 30th, and between now and that time it will be necessary for the veterans to collect considerably over $100 a day if they wish to have an expense fund of $45,000.

at you," continued Dr. Magruder, "I want to say something about a question which for nearly a year lus been very prominent. That is the prevention of food adulteration. It is only within recent years that the question of adulterated foods became a serious one. While the population was largely rural, and consumed food products of their own raising, there was no incentive for adulteration. But as conditions changed there arose the motives to increase the bulk of food products by adding cheaper products, and to add preservatives to make the goods keep until used. Both forms of adulteration were found so profitable that the practice of them increased till the limit of the patione of a long-suffering people was reached, and a national pure food law was passed. Previous to this most of the States had food laws more or less stringent, but only in recent years have many of them begun to put these laws into effective operation.

No Sort of Conflict.

No Sort of Conflict. "There will be no conflict between the national law and the State laws. They will supplement each other. The national law can only deal with interstate traffic, while the State law cannot reach a dealer or manufacturer outside of the State boundaries. The men in charge of ento their speaking of, and which would be interesting to all. Everybody ought to join in the discussion of papers presented, remembering that we are all friends, who assemble for the purpose of mutual benefit, and not for the purpose of mutual benefit, and not for the purpose of criticizing and finding fault.

CAPT. WISE'S SPEECH

Not Believed That Abuse Will Weigh Against Cold Facts.

The bitter arraignment of the Constitutional Convention by Captain John S. Wise in his argument of the suffrage case here Thursday has been the subjoet of a great deal of adverse criticism, Republicans joining with Democrats in their disapproval. Of course, no one would undertake to predict what will be the decision of the court, but those who heard the speeches are clearly of opinion that Captain Wise threw away any case he might have had by the manner in which he handled it. His opening speech on Wednesday, though not considered a strong legal argument, was yet free from anything approaching vituperation. Not so with his closing effort. It reminded many of the old days when the former Virginian was slinging mud in political campaigns, and it barely touched the points advanced in the great argument of Mr. Christian, to whom he was replying, But Captain Wise did not seem happy at any stage of the trial until he let himself out and "jumped on" the convention and Virginia politics with both feet, it is difficult to find any one who thinks there is anything in the case just tried, and it is safe to say that the other one will hever be called.

The subcommittee of the Council Fiiance Committee, entrusted with the making up of the budget for the year 1907, met yesterday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock and began its work. The committee sat until dark, and then adjourned for supper, reconvening in the evening and working until a late hour.

Necessarily the committee will have to scale the figures of some of the departments, but elsewhere it is expected that almost the entire sum asked will be recommended. In some cases ordinances will have to be enacted before the committee can provide for the offices proposed to be established thereby.

So far as known, not a single member of the committee is opposed to some increase of salary for the white public school teachers, though there are differences of view as to the amount that should be added to the various grades and classes of teachers.
